I. B. TIDELAND OIL ON AUCTION BLOCK

CARGO WORTH $4,500,000 IS READY

Emergency Embargo Bill Kept from White House Through Technicality

WASHINGTON, (P)—A parliamentary knot which held up signature of the speedily-enacted Spanish arms embargo gave rise today to the possibility of another race to ship war materials to the loyalist army.

House and senate jammed through the embargo late yesterday with only one dissenting voice, but a technicality may keep President Roosevelt from signing it into law until tomorrow afternoon.

Before that action would make the shipment illegal, Richard Dineley, San Francisco munitions dealer, hoped he might be able to get a $4,500,000 cargo of planes and arms en route to Spain.

Shipment Ready
One shipment of planes, shipped by Robert Cuse of Jersey City, was carried from New York on a Spanish freighter yesterday while the embargo resolution was rushed through congress at a pace reminiscent of the emergency banking bills four years ago.

Dineley, ready to take advantage of the delay, said he could get his goods on the sea in 24 hours, but that he had to wait for Spanish officials flying here from Mexico City. Bad weather delayed them. Administration leaders, deciding at the last minute to try to halt Cuse's shipment, offered the embargo resolution in both house and senate after President Roosevelt finished his address in mid-afternoon.

No Authorization
The measure, locking export of arms or munitions to either side in the Spanish civil war, zipped through the senate 80 to 0. (Please turn to Page 2, Col. 5)

MATTSON BOY STILL GONE

TACOMA, Wash. (P)—Coldest weather of the winter today alarmed the parents of kidnapped Charles Mattson who believed the 10-year-old boy might be suffering from exposure.

The thermometer sank to 15 above zero during the night, as the abductor ignored opportunities to return the victim or collect $25,000 ransom.

Preparations Made
Dr. W. V. Mattson, the boy's father and a prominent Tacoma physician and surgeon, was more than usually apprehensive that Charles, recovering from a cold when seized Dec. 27, might be seriously affected if he were being kept in an outlying, poorly heated shack as some other kidnap victims have been.

Dr. Mattson has made careful preparations for the boy's care when and if he is turned loose.

If Charles were released at a prearranged plan and found either by the family or federal agents, there was reason to believe he would be placed in a hospital instead of being taken to the large, old English style Mattson home.

Boy Not Robust
He might be freed on a lonely country road—like George Weyerhaeuser was—and discovered by a resident who might take him directly to the house. Precautions were being made to prevent the child being overly excited.

Water Rests On Sands of Politics Now

(Editor's Note: This is the third article in a series, dealing with the attitude of the new board of supervisors on questions of major importance affecting the voters of Orange county. Other articles, dealing with some of these questions in more detail, will follow.)

By ROCH BRADSHAW
Orange county's water program today rested upon a foundation of political quicksand.

Maybe the quicksand isn't very deep. Beneath it may be a foundation of solid rock. But until the public finds out how the new board of supervisors stands, the water program will be just another big question mark.

Three members of the present board are known to be wholeheartedly in favor of the present setup for the water program, whereby the federal government would finance construction of dams and the county would be required to furnish rights-of-way.

5 MORE AUTO PLANTS SHUT

Walkout Threatens Ford As Body Plant Closes; 51,803 Men Idle

By The Associated Press
Strikes and shutdowns in the automobile industry spread to five more plants today shortly after Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan in a statement said prospects looked good for opening direct negotiations to settle the General Motors controversy.

The labor trouble drew nearer Ford Motor company when a "sit down" strike began in two departments of a Briggs Body plant at Detroit. The plant employs 2,500 and supplies bodies for the Lincoln division of Ford.

A similar strike developed in one department of a local unit of the Murray Body company at Detroit.

Possibility of the General Motors strike affecting more than 70,000 workers at the end of the week developed with an announcement by Chevrolet that operations would be suspended by Friday night in its plant at Flint, Mich., and its iron foundry and small parts plants at Saginaw and Bay City, Mich.

The suspensions would add 19,875 General Motors employees to the 51,803 already idle.

Earlier in the day there were signs that employer-worker breaches were narrowing in both the automotive and maritime strikes.

New Attack on Security Act

WASHINGTON, (P)—A new attack on constitutionality of the federal social security act was filed in the supreme court today by Howes Brothers company of Boston.

The company filed a petition directed also at the Massachusetts unemployment insurance act, which supplements the federal legislation. The petitioner contended the state act was ineffective because the federal law was unconstitutional.

more than 100 members, and there are others with valuable collections who do not belong to the organization.

There is a funny thing about stamps. It seems that the worse they are the more they are worth. If Uncle Sam makes a mistake on a stamp, collectors all over the country immediately go wild and start tearing each other to pieces to get to them. In fact, stamps which are not perfect become so valuable that several small principalities in Europe are said to make errors in printing their stamps on purpose, and support the whole blooming government on sale of the bits of paper.

REAL ESTATE DEALS TOTAL 5 MILLIONS

Tax Stamps Issued in S. A. Provide County Transfer Estimate

Real estate conveyances and stock transfers and issuances in Orange county aggregated approximately $10,000,000 during the past year.

Best estimates available on division in the two classes of business were that realty transfers accounted for half, or $5,000,000, and stock transfers and issuances the balance.

The figures, the most authentic available, were based on an announcement today by Postmaster Frank Harwood, who announced that revenue stamp sales during the past year amounted to $10,382,06.

How Tax Is Figured
Postmaster Harwood pointed out that one dollar's worth of revenue stamps must be affixed to every thousand dollars involved in a real estate transfer. On this basis the realty figures were arrived at.

There were a number of reorganizations of big institutions in Orange county during the year, with heavy issues of stock following. It was learned that the revenue stamp value which must be affixed to every thousand dollars worth of original issue stock also is one dollar, or the same ratio as for real estate.

Transfers Taxed Also
On transfers of stock the revenue charge is 40 cents on the thousand dollars, regarding par value stock. Stock with no par value has a rate of four cents a share. These values would tend to lower the estimate a little, but the extra $382 not considered in the total of $10,382.06 in arriving at the figures, would make up for the difference.

It was pointed out that realty transfers likely were above the conservative five million dollar figure, because only that portion of the real estate which is unincumbered is taxed. Liens are not taxable. For example, if a property sold for $20,000 and there was a $10,000 mortgage on the property, only the $10,000 which is clear would be taxed.

POPE PIUS IS IMPROVING

VATICAN CITY, (P)—Pope Pius is improving "progressively," an official bulletin from the Vatican said tonight.

"This improvement permits him to carry out his constant and ardent desire for work which, with his admirable resistance, form two of his most beloved characteristics," the bulletin declared.

Observatore Romano, official Vatican newspaper, quoted the 79-year-old pontiff as saying: "We do not refuse pain—we ask for it."

Did You See: RODNEY BACON smoking an explosive cigarette?

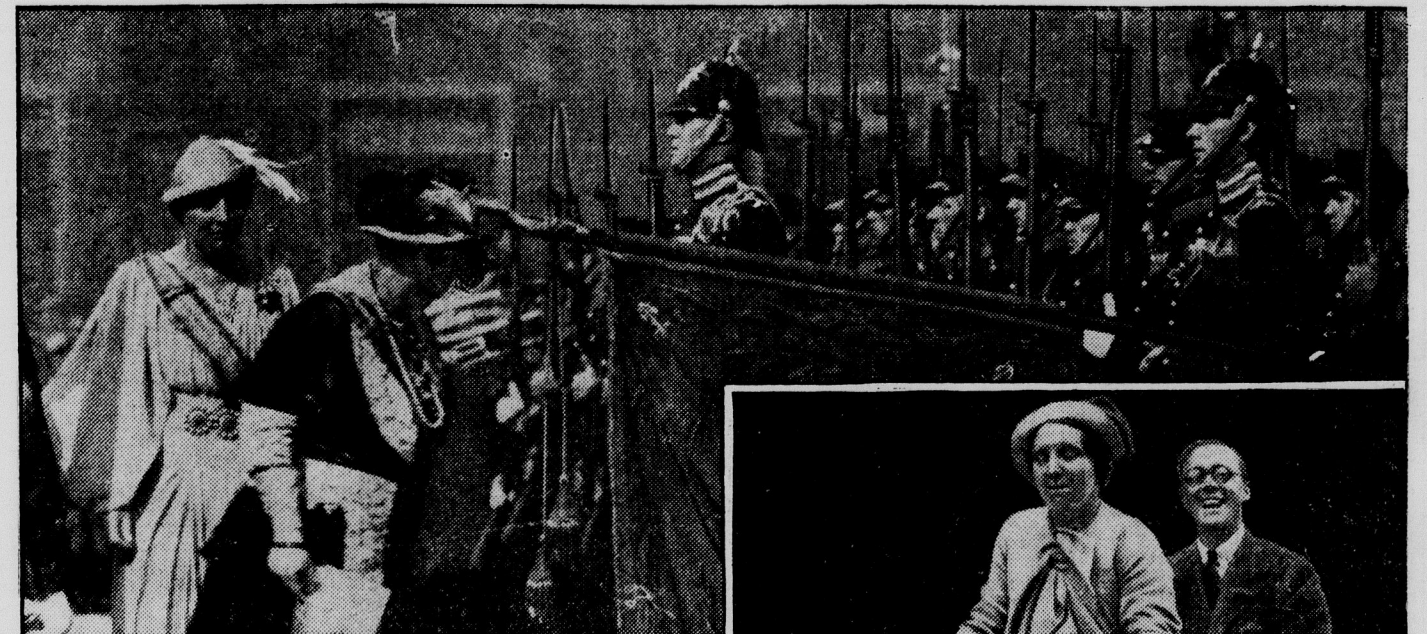

MAXWELL BURKE in the county welfare department this morning?

CARL HANKEV, San Juan Capistrano, worrying about the rain?

Alexander of Newport road, former assistant postmaster of Santa Ana, has in his valuable collection, for instance. It's only a two-cent stamp, and not very old. But it's worth $300 in cold cash! It's the most valuable stamp in the county.

It is a Pan-American commemorative stamp, issued in 1901. It is printed in two colors, black and red. When Uncle Sam ran the stamps through the second time for the second color, the train of cars was turned upside down. Which was a mistake. And which makes the stamp extra valuable. Alexander has one and four-cent stamps of this same issue, but they aren't worth so much. Only $1000 apiece!

Holland's Juliana Weds Nazi Prince Bernhard

To the cheering of 2,000,000 subjects, Juliana of the Netherlands was wed today. Here she is shown, first with her mother, Queen Wilhelmina, as they entered parliament last September, and in the lower picture with husband Prince Bernhard of Germany, as they cavorted during their courtship. When Juliana succeeds to the Dutch throne she'll be queen—Bernard will be only consort.

Dutch Kerk Scene Of Royal Rites

By THOMAS J. HAMILTON, Jr.
THE HAGUE, (P)—The Netherlands' royal maid, Crown Princess Juliana, became the bride of German Prince Bernhard Zu Lippe-Biesterfeld today amid the rejoicing of two million subjects in this land of tulips and windmills. First at a quaint town hall civil ceremony, then in the historic, color-splashed Grote Kerk, Juliana and Bernhard pronounced their vows.

Radiant in an ivory satin dress sprinkled with orange blossoms, the princess who is the sole hope of perpetuating the ancient house of Orange, stood in the center of a brilliant circle of bridesmaids, their gowns forming a "bouquet" of lilac, orange and blue.

The quiet Bernhard, resplendent in the full dress uniform of a captain of Blue Hussars, became by royal decree coincident with the vows: "His Royal Highness, Prince of the Netherlands."

Dr. H. T. Obbink, the pastor of the Netherlands court, told them: "The eyes of the whole Netherlands, the colonies, of Dutch men throughout the world are fixed on this place. From thousands of hearts, prayers are sent to the throne of God that his love and blessing may attend you and all your ways."

Bells pealed throughout the low-lands kingdom as Juliana and Bernhard rode from palace to town hall and then to church in a golden coach drawn by eight proud horses, through frantic lines of cheering Dutch folk.

And in the little hamlet of Oestgeest "the other Juliana," whose name really is Petronella Van Der Meer, was wed to Cananlian Martinus Van Stijp—the only other girl in all the realm to marry today, because she and the princess were born on the same day and in the same hour.

Seriously injured in a freak accident at 101 highway and B street near Tustin early today, three men from the El Toro CCC hospital today under treatment for broken legs and arms.

Apparently the machine in which the three men were riding was being towed by another car, according to investigation by Highway Patrol Officer Dan Adams, who said a tow rope was hanging to the front of their demolished automobile, which may have swung loose from the other car at the curve. It crashed between two trees, injuring the men severely.

The injured men are William Imblum, 47; Thomas Capps, 44, and Lewis Sweeney, 42. Hospital attaches said the men would recover and would be transferred to the veterans hospital at Sawtelle today.

F. D. R. Discusses Labor Legislation

WASHINGTON, (P)—Representatives of railroad labor and management gathered today at the suggestion of President Roosevelt to discuss proposed new labor legislation.

The President said it might be possible to work out some of the proposals in conference, obviating any need for new laws.

BILL ALLOWS COMPETITIVE BIDDING

Orange County Left Out In Cold in Merriam's Sea Pool Measure

Orange county's rich tideland oil pool at Huntington Beach was on the auction block today.

Governor Merriam's bill to authorize drilling the fabulously rich pool either by the state or by private interests, through competitive bidding, was introduced in the state legislature this morning.

Neither Orange county nor Huntington Beach is mentioned in the bill as receiving any royalty from leases. Proceeds are to go into the state general fund.

The measure provides actual drilling can be conducted either from the bed of the ocean, or from the surface of adjacent uplands by means of wells slanted into the oil fields.

Worth $200,000

Provisions of the bill, according to Supervisor N. E. West of Laguna Beach, were arrived at in a caucus held by all interests involved in tapping of the ocean pools.

West also admitted he had a hand in determining the provisions of the new measure, which may settle once and for all bitter controversies over the tideland pool, which have raged here and in Sacramento for years.

West stumped vigorously during the recent election campaign against what he termed "stealing" of the oil by major oil companies and independents.

Estimates by geologists of the value of the state's tideland holdings have ranged to as high as $200,000,000 for the Huntington Beach field.

Authority to purchase real property or interests in adjacent uplands for the purpose of sinking slant wells into the pools is given in the bill.

In the event the state should be unable to acquire such property it is given the right of condemning ground or facilities needed by eminent domain condemnation proceedings.

FROST WARNING FOR FARMERS

Orange county citrus growers prepared to carry the torch tonight to orchard heaters.

Agricultural Commissioner D. W. Tubbs today issued a warning to growers, informing them that if it clears up tonight it probably will be one or two degrees colder than it was last night and early this morning.

Temperatures in spots dropped down to 28 and 29 degrees this morning, he said, but no real damage was done to citrus fruit. There was a possibility that there was some damage in a few spots last night, he said.

Famous Prospector Sued By Wife

LONG BEACH, (P)—Walter (Death Valley) Scott, mystery prospector of the old wild West, was sued here today for separate maintenance by Mrs. Ella Josephine Scott, 60. They were married Nov. 9, 1900, in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Scott asked the court to award her $1000 per month and living expenses and medical care. She said she was without funds and was suffering from physical disabilities. She also asked for $25,000 for purposes of maintaining the legal action and for an accounting and division of all community property.

A Gag for Roosevelt!

Yes, the war profiteers would like to gag President Roosevelt. They want to make a profit on shipping war supplies to battling nations—even if it drags Uncle Sam into the fray. Paine, a new member of The Journal's editorial family, has to say about it under "One Man's Opinion."

COUNTY RAIN TOTAL AGAIN GOES UP

Forecast Says the Storm Is Over; Weather Turns Colder

Officially, the rain is over, although a few unofficial storm clouds still hang menacingly over Orange county at noon today.

Following further showers which brought less than a half-inch of rain to the county generally and which boosted the storm total to around the one-inch mark, cold weather arrived with a bang this morning, coating roofs and lawns with frost. In some parts of the county, ice formed in pools of water left standing from the rains.

Friday May Be Clear
Tomorrow, weathermen predict, will be clear. Temperatures will continue below normal for a few days, while we may have a few gentle breezes during the afternoons.

Santa Ana received 21 inch of rain up to 8 o'clock this morning, which boosted the total for this storm to .59 inch and for the season up to 8.13 inches. Last year at this time, 1.42 inches had been received. Midway City received .56 inch during the night. Limestone canyon observers reported .50 inch and Newport Beach .39 inch.

Saddleback and surrounding mountains received the heaviest coating of snow this year during the night.

Charge Officers With Murder

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (P)—Second degree murder indictments charged seven Hot Springs policemen today with "striking, kicking and beating" to death a city jail prisoner.

Gariand county authorities arrested the men accused of "assaulting and murdering" John Dickson, 32, whose death certificate showed he died of pneumonia Christmas eve.

Those taken into custody were Capt. Bob Moore, Patrolmen Andy Irvin, Pat Griffin and Joe Scott, Capt. Arch Cooper, Detective Glen Buchanan and Lieut. Cecil Brock. Each was released on $1500 bond. All denied the charges.

ley of Santa Ana, is inclined to think he favors this program, but if it came to a showdown between it and the proposal for the county to join the Metropolitan Water District, Supervisor Finley would support the MWD.

Supervisor Harry D. Riley of Anaheim, the other new member, declined until Tuesday to make public his attitude on the county water program. At that time he asserted he was in favor of conserving and developing every drop of water possible for Orange county.

Add to that is the persistent rumor that Supervisor Willard Smith of Orange will resign Smith denied the rumor several weeks ago, and again on Monday, but it still sticks up its head. Smith has worked untiringly for the water program. Even the rumor of his resignation raises the question of what might be the attitude of a third new member on the board.

What About Election
And so—there's the quicksand for the water program.

The retiring board did everything in its power to call a bond election for the water project before the new board came in. Technical difficulties rose up to prevent this action.

What will the new board do about calling an election? The water program is the county's major issue and the people will await with interest any remarks or acts by the new board members which will reveal their positions on this subject.

Finley's Attitude
Not much has been said in public lately about the proposal for the county to join the MWD. There are those who favor this action as a substitute for the county water program. Will the new setup on the board give proponents of this scheme an opportunity to put it over?

Finley told "The Journal" he is "inclined to think" he would favor the county water program "provided the cost to the county is not more than $2,000,000." When interviewed, however, he said he did not have sufficient data from authoritative sources to know whether he will vote in favor of calling a bond election for this purpose.

Finley said he would support the movement for Orange county to join the MWD.

"If the two programs were opposed to each other, which would you support?" Finley was asked.

"I would support the MWD program," he replied. "We need more water than we need flood protection, which can be taken care of in the upper reaches of the Santa Ana river."

Gun Club Ordinance
Another phase of the water question often brought into the limelight is the county ordinance on water use, affecting gun clubs. The retiring board once passed an ordinance with teeth in it. This was repealed. The present ordinance, it is agreed, isn't very effective. The farm bureau water committee and the directors of the county water district asked the supervisors to put some teeth in the water ordinance and it was indicated these groups would support the county water program if this request was granted. The matter is now being studied by a committee.

Neither Riley nor Finley had anything to do with appointment of this committee.

Finley's Stand
Finley said in regard to this subject, "I consider the present ordinance unsatisfactory. The gun clubs use water the county needs badly, for a few sports from Pasadena, Los Angeles and other outside cities. If it is possible, I favor more teeth in the ordinance—and sharpening them."

That doesn't leave much doubt about Finley's position. But it doesn't tell voters in the other four districts of the county how their supervisors stand. These other supervisors refused to answer these questions and others propounded by The Journal.

All of which will leave the water program resting on quicksand until the rest of the board makes its position clear.

FLIERS' BODIES NOT LOCATED

HAMILTON FIELD. (P)—Divers attempted today to locate the bodies of two army fliers feared lost when their bombing plane fell in San Pablo bay.

A barge was moored alongside the submerged wreckage of the plane yesterday, but the bodies of Reserve Lieutenant Herbert E. Knierr, pilot, and Private Hartley Roberts, observer, were not found.

The bomber crashed Monday night in shallow water and mud off Sears Point, after becoming separated from other planes in a formation flight over the San Joaquin valley.

Cold Wave Moves On Citrus Belt

LOS ANGELES. (P)—A huge "cold front" moved down from the north Pacific on Southern California today but protective measures saved the citrus crop from damage.

The minimum temperature here this morning was 33, the coldest of the winter. At Arcadia, in the citrus belt, it was 29, the lowest temperature in the lowlands. At Palmdale, on the edge of the Mojave desert 35 miles north of here, the thermometer fell to 18.

BEGIN JAYSEE JOB SOON AT FULLERTON

Construction work on a new $157,255 unit of the Fullerton Junior college plant will start Jan. 12.

Dan Mulherron, chief of the WPA in Orange county, today announced that the government has allotted funds for construction of the second unit of the Fullerton college.

The federal government will contribute $84,528 on the project and the sponsor $72,727. The project will give work to an average of 206 men for 12 months. Mulherron considers this project one of the finest in the county. The first unit of the Fullerton college plant was constructed with PWA assistance, the second will be with WPA help. The first unit was the commercial building. The second unit will be a two-story reinforced concrete building with artificial lighting system and washed air ventilation and heating.

$5135 DAMAGE SUIT UPHELD

Award of $5135 to Charles M. Furuta for the death of his daughter, Nobuko Furuta, in a highway accident in 1934 has been upheld by the fourth district appellate court, according to notice received here today.

The higher court sustained Superior Judge James L. Allen in holding Carl William Randall, driver of an auto and boat trailer into which the girl's car crashed, responsible and giving judgment against Randall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Randall.

Miss Furuta was a passenger in an auto which struck the trailer and a 21-foot motor boat early on the morning of March 8, 1934, on Huntington Beach boulevard. The court held that the trailer did not carry legal lights.

Thieves Make Off With Huge Haul

NAGOYA, Japan. (P)—Fifty-eight solid gold scales, valued at $840,000 were stolen today from one of the two massive gold dolphins atop the historic Cyclopean castle.

The gold in the dolphins—one male and the other female—according to tradition, was taken from feudal lords by Tokugawa Shogunate, who ruled Japan 300 years ago.

The lords were obliged to surrender the gold, Japanese legends relate, to weaken their power in the empire. The fish, placed on the roof of the castle at the time of its construction in 1610, are regarded as national treasures.

that I bring a test case on marble machines, apparently for the purpose of determining the legality of such machines, so that the several municipalities of the county may be guided in their attitude toward such machines.

Against Test Case

"Due to some error, I am advised, I was not invited to the conference held at the district attorney's request. I shall be glad, however, to discuss the subject placed before me by the conference."

The attorney general of the state of California has expressed, in clear and unmistakable language, the opinion that such machines are illegal, and he has called upon the police officers of the state to enforce the law. The district attorney of Orange county has concurred in that view.

"I am satisfied with these opinions and I do not know where I could get better authority than the attorney general for taking action against such gambling devices. Therefore, I see no necessity for a 'test' case. I prefer to be guided by the view of the chief law officer of the state."

Tells of Criticism

"Some criticism has been made of me because I have followed the policy of taking possession of the machines rather than filing a complaint and leaving the machine in possession of the operator. My experience has been that this is the most effective and economical way of stopping the operation of machines. If the owners think that I am in illegal possession of the machines, they have the right to appeal to the courts to compel me to return them. I am, of course, wholly within the law in making seizures of gambling equipment."

"Some criticism, I understand, was expressed at the district attorney's conference, because of a published statement to the effect that I would act in municipalities, if local authorities failed to do so."

I do not feel that such criticism is justified, in view of the fact that my responsibility for enforcement of state law runs equally in cities and unincorporated territory. This was made clear by the attorney general in his statement to peace officers. It has been my position, and still is, that the first responsibility for enforcement in cities lies on local officers. If, however, it becomes apparent that, in particular cases, such enforcement is neglected, there is no other course open to me than to assume the responsibility.

Won't Evade Responsibility

"With limited forces at my disposal, it is clear that I have no disposition to act where other responsible authority exists; and I have never done so. I cannot, however, evade the responsibility."

"Local officers have no responsibility to me, and I make no effort either to advise them or to criticize them. They are responsible to their local communities, as I am responsible to the county as a whole. I am glad, always, to give the fullest cooperation of my office to local officers, and I appreciate the help which has been given me generally throughout the county."

KILLER BEGS FOR CHANCE TO TALK

CHICAGO. (P)—A doctor called facial disfigurement an even more tragic by-product of automobile accidents today than sudden death itself.

Dr. Claire L. Straith of Detroit, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, observed that the psychological handicap imposed by ugly scars and twisted features has "blighted many promising careers and helped swell the ranks of the unemployed."

He warned against hasty "emergency care" of accident victims, contending such preliminary treatment "often jeopardizes the good end result."

CHINA STARTS TWO-MAN BOND DRUGS DRIVE

PEIPING. (P)—China's long-heralded campaign against narcotic addicts and dealers was launched tonight with police raids on dens of addicts, where 100 prisoners were reported seized.

Reliable informants declared the captives, who had failed to obey stern orders to "be cured by New Year's or die," would probably be shot Friday, but municipal officials kept strict silence on execution plans.

The raiding parties scattered through various parts of Peiping, estimated by authorities to have an addict population of 100,000. Dreamy slumbers of the inmates of the dens were interrupted by the entrance of strong-arm police squads, which combed the dark passages of the illicit houses.

GERMANY AND ITALY ANSWER PLEAS

Germany and Italy, the Fascist powers of Europe, answered French and British pleas that they stop sending volunteers to Spain in conciliatory, yet reserved, notes tonight.

Both replies, delivered in Berlin and in Rome, were said to agree in principle that volunteers should not go from other countries to fight with the Spanish government or the insurgents.

Yet these powers which have helped the insurgents pointed to what they contend are the unclear positions of other nations, presumably Russia and France, whose volunteers are fighting in the defense of the Socialist government.

Italy, in particular, was said to have raised the question of the Franco-Spanish border, over which most volunteers bound for the international defense of Madrid have passed.

Anthony Eden, Britain's foreign secretary, hammered home to the German charge d'affaires in London the gravity of the volunteer enlistments, which have made in Spain a "little world war."

facilities, the state or persons with whom it contracted, could drill from groins or piers constructed upon the bed of the ocean.

The bill, its sponsors say, does not authorize general tideland drilling. The area is confined to 15 square miles in Orange county and in the vicinity of Huntington Beach.

10-Year Lease

The administration measure, promising to be one of the major issues of the legislative session, made its first appearance in the assembly bearing the name of Assemblyman Frank J. Waters, Los Angeles.

The terms of any lease executed by the state to the "highest responsible bidder" would be limited to 10 years with the option for an extension not to exceed five years additional "unless otherwise prescribed by law at the expiration of the 10-year period."

Sponsors of the bill say provision is made for adequate protection of the beaches, navigation and fishing, against unnecessary use of the beaches for drilling and against pollution of the waters of the ocean.

ASK LAW FOR CRIMES ON HIGH SEA

WASHINGTON. (P)—Attorney General Cummings urged President Roosevelt today to ask Congress for "a complete overhauling" of laws relating to crimes on the high seas.

In his annual report to the chief executive, Cummings said present laws provided application of state laws to crimes committed on shores and waters within the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States but "have no application to offenses committed on the high seas."

Among high seas crimes to which attention of government authorities was drawn last year, Cummings said, was the presence of gambling ships off the Southern California coast.

"Attention also has been drawn," Cummings added, "to operations of professional swindlers traveling on American vessels who fleece persons whom they succeed in drawing into card games."

The desirability and importance of a complete overhauling and a considerable amplification of the statutes prohibiting offenses on the high seas is suggested."

DR. E. D. MARTIN TO SPEAK HERE

Making one of his now infrequent public lecture appearances, Dr. Everett Dean Martin, noted author and philosopher, will conduct next Monday night's Orange County Public Forum's session at the high school auditorium. His subject will be "What An American May Learn From The Experience in Spain."

Dr. Martin is known as the dean of American forum leaders because of his long association in New York City with Cooper Union Forum, the largest center of free discussion of political and educational subjects in America.

He now is associated with Claremont Colleges, where he is head of the department of adult education.

AVOCADO JOB AGAIN GIVEN TO NEWMAN

Rename Tustin Grower District Director; Crop to Be Good

C. C. Newman of Tustin was re-elected director from the Santa Ana-Tustin-Orange district of the Calavo Growers of California at an annual meeting here yesterday. Outlook for the marketing of the large 1937 Calavo-avocado crop of this and other Southern California districts appears encouraging, it was reported by Manager George B. Hodgkin of the state organization at the annual session.

"Condition of the fruit this year is better than usual, and we expect a larger percentage to be of 'Calavo' grade," the manager of the growers' marketing organization declared.

"The crop will be about double that of 1936. A brisk, nationwide demand is assured for the 1937 crop, due to establishing 12 more branch offices in as many additional cities of the country this fall. This brings the total number of cities up to 34, in each of which we now have actively operating sales offices."

Hodgkin said that increasing grower cooperation in the distribution and national marketing of the fruit is paying and will pay increasing returns to Southern California growers. He said the 1936 crop was about half the size of the previous crop, but it netted cooperating growers more total dollars than was realized during the previous season.

Exonerate Driver In Auto Death

An unidentified middle-aged transient, struck down by an automobile Dec. 27 as he walked along the coast highway in San Clemente, will be buried by the county.

The driver whose car struck him, William A. Parsons of San Diego, stands exonerated of the death, as the result of a coroner's inquest yesterday. The jury decided Parsons was not to blame for the accident, which occurred as the unidentified man walked through the rain along the highway.

$7200 Damages For Crash Asked

Mr. and Mrs. Homes S. Jones today asked $7200 damages for injuries allegedly sustained in an auto collision Aug. 13 near Huntington Beach when they started suit in superior court against Earl O. Whittington and Mrs. Carrie L. Funk.

The complaint charges that Whittington and Mrs. Funk signed the application of Neil Ellis Whittington, driver of a car involved in the accident, for a driving license, and that therefore they are responsible.

Return Suspect For Check Trial

After a snowy trip homeward, Deputy Sheriff Merle Dean and Steve Duhart arrived here yesterday afternoon returning Laville Edgar, 38, for trial on forged check charges.

Edgar, San Diego salesman, was arrested by police in Los Vegas, Nev., early this week on a warrant from the sheriff's office here. Arraigned before Justice Kenneth Morrison, he heard preliminary hearing set for Jan. 14. He is being held under $1500 bail.

POLICE REPORTS

Pete Mercurio, 1010 Custer street, asked police to find out who owned a car bearing license plates 8 N 2737, which he said ran into his bicycle, breaking a wheel.

The man might have been trying to sell Oriental rugs, but he hadn't sold one, police decided there wasn't anything to be done when they answered a call to the Carlson home, 2120 North Ross street. Mrs. Carlson said she didn't want to sign a complaint, and the peddler hadn't made a sale, so they let it go at that.

Six-year-old Ronald Maxwell, 817 South Flower street, reported missing yesterday afternoon, returned home an hour later.

Ruby Reynolds, 218 West Third street, asked police to watch for the miscreants who have been punching holes in the plasterboard at a new house at 715 Kilson drive.

Gabriel Capron, 219 South Franklin street, asked officers to watch for thieves who have been stealing walnut wood from an orchard at Santa Clara and Broadway.

SIX JAYSEE CANDIDATES IN FIELD

Indications that the Associated Student elections at Santa Ana Junior college would be hotly contested was evidenced when six petitions were taken out for candidates for the four offices today.

A special assembly has been arranged for Tuesday morning at Willard auditorium at which time candidates will be presented by petitioners. Although at this time there are only six candidates, it is anticipated more would be in the field tomorrow.

Inter-club politics will play an important role in the election with each service club putting up a candidate. Franklin Guthrie, Fred Newcomb and Bill Greshner are the presidential candidates. Guthrie is president of the Junior Lions service club, sports editor of El Don, commissioner of men's athletics, and Beta Gamma member. Greshner is president of the Bachelors' service club, prominent football player, and track captain.

Fred Erdhaus, end on the championship football team, Los Gauchos, and O. K. club member, is up for vice president. Lou Ella Pierce is sole contestant for secretary, as is Phil Cook for treasurer.

Primary elections will be held Wednesday, Jan. 20, according to Vice Rowland, Associated Student president.

UTT, COLLINS IN NORTH TO SEEK JOBS

Developments in the race for appointment as state inheritance tax appraiser came rapidly today.

It appeared to be a physical as well as political race as two Orange county Republicans sped towards Sacramento today, apparently to make personal contacts with Controller Harry B. Riley, who recently succeeded Ray L. Riley as state controller.

Accompanied by Justice F. Craemer, Orange, Governor Merriam's right-hand man, former Assemblyman James B. Utt left this morning for Sacramento. Utt is a candidate for inheritance tax appraiser for Orange county.

Former Congressman Sam L. Collins also was on his way to Sacramento today, it was learned. Collins' name has been mentioned prominently as a candidate for the appraisal job.

Howard I. Irwin of Fullerton, who also is a candidate for state inheritance appraiser, remained at home today. He told The Journal he would accept the position if it is offered him. Irwin is chairman of the Orange county Republican central committee.

It is understood that the inheritance appraisal job, made vacant by the death of the late John N. Anderson, will be split, with an appraiser in the northern and southern part of the county. Orange county is without an appraiser at the present time, the

BRIDESMAIDS TO JULIANA ARE BROKE

THE HAGUE. (AP)—Wilhelmina of Holland dug down in her queenly purse today to help out the German princess-bridesmaids of Crown Princess Juliana, who becomes a bride today.

First, German resentment over the non-singing of Nazi "Lieds" and the non-flying of Nazi Swastikas caused passport difficulties for the bridesmaids, who include the Princesses Elizabeth and Sieglinde Zu Lippe and Sophie of Saxe-Weimarsenach, kinswomen of the Flustered groom, Prince Bernhard Zu Lippe Biesterfeld.

That was ironed out, but the Reich's government, pursuing its usual course when citizens leave the country on visit, permitted the bridesmaids to depart with but 10 marks apiece (less than $4).

So the queen is defraying all expenses—including those for the wedding dresses, fancy dress hall costumes and pin money for the girls.

Brick Dust

Here and There With The Journal's
Rambling County Editor
By T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

CHIEF OF POLICE GEORGE FRANZEN of Orange, is the perfect host—ask members of the county Peace Officers' association and they'll all agree!

Take last night, for instance. George was host to fellow officers. Lovely meeting, but things began to get a bit dull, as all meetings will. But did the chief let things drag? No—he fixed things up fine. Arranged a very nice fire in the washroom of the cafe. It warmed things up very nicely!

At first I thought the smell of burning wood was from the cigar Officer Elliste donated to the press, but investigation by the combined police forces of all Orange county cities revealed that the odor, instead, was burning varnish, Oregon pine and several layers of paint!

Which, I hope, won't be taken as a reflection on the officer's cigar. It was a good one!

While associating with the officers last night I covered two things. The first was about the Orange chief. At several other meetings he's offered me a pencil, but he never reached the point of really handing one over.

Last night he finally gave me a pencil—on rather a flimsy note. W. Coffey that HE should give me one, which is just about as good!

The other thing I learned was about Herman Zabel's ability as a resolution-maker. The chair ordered Herman to prepare such a document. Herman took almost the entire meeting writing his fingernails and scribbling, but when he finally finished, it was a lulu! First he tossed a few flowers into the air. Then he scooped 'em up and tossed 'em up again. He had us fairly sniffling!

Incidentally, I've been wondering for some time why Stan Wilson, the Orange scribe, always is attacking Officer G. W. Coltraine. I tried to find out last night, but couldn't. The much-maligned cop didn't sneer at the press. Neither did he kick out any windows or speak out of turn.

But I find out what members of the Orange force were doing last night! What ones didn't come to the officers' meeting were at a 20-30 club session. Society guys, huh?

Add discoveries: That Harbor-master Tommy Bouchey at Balboa is a punster of quite some abilities. He snapped out a couple yesterday that were honies.

Oh, yes, and another discovery, too. That Mrs. Tommy makes unkind remarks when he forgets himself and indulges in that brand of humor. I can sympathize with him—know just how he feels!

At last, I know what it feels like to be a godfather!

A pinkish-hatched arrival at the George A. Wright home in Costa Mesa has been named "Brick." Imagine!

Now my big worry is what to buy for the newcomer. If anyone has any suggestions, they'd be appreciated.

Oh—incidentally, the newcomer is a dog. One of five new ones. Spaniels. Would a can of dog food be appropriate? Oh how would some fleas do?

Interested in weather? Neither am I, but several large figures pop up on the county's rain chart, space is hard to fill on these stormy days, and therefore we'll have a little more weather, whether (please!) we like it or not.

Amateur prognosticators who predicted a wet winter and a bubbling spring apparently are right, unless Ole Uncle Gaines and his rain chart are all wet.

On account of last year we had most of our rain after January. Also the year before that and the year before that—and get the idea?

Rain totals from a number of county cities show this far this year average 7.71 inches of water. That's an average, mind you, not a jumble all the figures together, adds 'em up and then, with a bit of fawny diving, we have the average, see? Oke.

Then we consult last year's chart, and the same cities, starting with the rain of Jan. 29 and running through to April 3 we received 7.69 inches. If we get the same as last year's light total, the springtime showers will boost this year's total to an average of 15.40 inches!

Which, my friends, is rainfall in anyone's territory!

SHIP-TO-SHORE COMMUNICATION SUGGESTED AT NEWPORT

INSTALL NEW DEVICES ON BAY CRAFT

Direct Shore Connection
Offered by 100-Mile
Broadcasting Sets

NEWPORT-BALBOA. Summer may find ship-to-shore radio telephones approaching standard equipment on the thousand and more pleasure craft registered at Newport bay, it was suggested today with the announcement that a demonstration set will be installed on the "Blue Goose," E. T. Wall's 50-foot cruiser Saturday, and will be open to inspection of all interested boat owners.

Ship sets now are of such small cost as to be cheap cruising insurance, it was understood. When a motor breaks down or other trouble occurs at sea, a radio telephone call brings quick help and saves money and many times even life itself, authorities declared.

Craft Equipped.
Many Newport bay craft already are equipped with the radio telephones, and work boat owners are considering providing themselves with the means of communicating between their shore offices and tugs at sea, they said.

Calls are placed, it was explained, in the same manner as on an ordinary city telephone. From a shore phone the call is relayed to the marine radio telephone station located on the Palos Verdes hills beyond San Pedro, and there radioed to sea.

Operation Told.
On board, the telephone is a compact short-wave radio set with two-way communication. Lifting the receiver, in some cases, automatically warms up the set and signals the shore station where the number called is relayed to the city long distance operator.

Special toll charges apply to the service. Between-boats conversations may be held, it was understood, without the necessity of calling the marine exchange. Sets now in use have a range of 100 miles for the voice, and up to 600 miles for code.

G. G. CLUB HAS ANNUAL MEET

Editors and Their Opinions

A digest of ideas from Orange county newspapers, reprinted as being of interest to readers of The Journal.

(Fullerton News Tribune)

One of the finest things that could happen to this county in the coming year would be a general resolve to take one evening off from bridge and pictures and poker and hold a neighborhood gathering for the purpose of talking about things. It is probably true that conversation is a lost art, because few people have a chance to practice it any more. The worst thing is that thinking also has about disappeared. Where the axes of the country used to have the vista of neighbors, there is no longer any common meeting place where thoughts can be exchanged. Few readers even read the news, satisfying themselves with the headlines. Not one person in 20 knows or cares what is going on in state or national legislatures—and few ever think of their local governments except when the tax bills arrive. Public forums are a poor substitute for personal interchange; indeed, many of them obscure rather than clarify subjects of importance. Talking doesn't always mean thinking, but a revival of conversation ought to produce at least a little thought.

Western Collegians Receive Rhodes Scholarships

P.T.A. COUNCIL HEARS TALK

ORANGE.—Members of Orange community council, Parent-Teacher association, heard a talk by C. I. Thomas, superintendent of schools, on lighting conditions in the local schools and advisability of thrift savings accounts for pupils Wednesday at the home of Mrs. August Pestolesi.

A nursery school for white children, to be sponsored by the P.T.A., is a probability, it was announced, following a discussion on the matter. A nursery school for Mexican children, sponsored by WPA, already is being operated. It was also announced that Dr. Gertrude Laws, director of adult education, will give a series of 16 lectures on the public forum program, beginning soon. The forum meets each Tuesday evening at the local high school.

Plans were made for a past president's tea, to be given at the next council meeting, Feb. 3, at the home of Mrs. R. E. Gross. A fourth district presidents' conference is to be held here in March, with Mrs. Vern Estes, Mrs. C. E. Wood and Mrs. H. G. Joost named special hostesses.

A noon luncheon opened the council meeting, with Mesdames Lon Foster, William Dyer and Oliver Wickersham as assistant hostesses. Mrs. Oliver Wickersham conducted the business session.

Other council members present were Mesdames R. E. Gross, C. A. Palmer, Marion Flippin, Wilbur Nave, C. E. Wood, Vern O. Estes, E. G. Smith, T. L. Seavy, Clayton Scarborough, Glen Reek, W. J. Brenn, Orange; V. A. Schultz, Silverado; O. J. Linnartz, Olive; J. S. Sorenson and Faye Erwin, El Modena, and Miss Vena Jones, school nurse.

MISSIONARY IS LION SPEAKER

ORANGE.—Miss Ellen Suffer, missionary home on furlough from China, predicted a war between China and Japan as soon as Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek has united the Chinese under his banner, when she spoke before the Lions club yesterday noon.

From a peace loving nation the Chinese are being changed into a warlike nation and are getting ready for an offensive war against Japan, she added. A majority of Chinese officials in the present Nanking government are graduates of mission schools, she added, and said that Christianity is holding its own among educated classes.

J. Willis Thompson was program chairman, and during the business meeting, Roy Edwards, Jack Morris and Ivan Swanger were fined for remaining bachelors throughout 1936.

PRIEST TELLS OF SPANISH UPRISING

ORANGE.—Communism as "public enemy No. 1" to the world today, and underlying causes of the revolution in Spain, were explained to members of the Orange County Peace Officers association here last night by Father Pedro Penamil, Catholic priest, who recently left the war-torn country.

Father Penamil traced gradual breakdown of Spain through insidious Communist propaganda and other activities, pointing out necessity of the "rebels" winning their attempt for freedom if other countries are successfully to battle Communism. "I saw the beginnings of Communism in England and France, where it already has a strong hold," the speaker added.

He told of fleeing his country when his entire family was placed on a governmental "blacklist," calling for their execution. Father Penamil explained strength of Communist organizations in this country and concluded with a plea for aid of all officers in stamping out the evil. He was introduced by Chief of Police James B. Pearson, Fullerton.

Chief of Police George Franzen, Orange, was in charge of the meeting, with Officer G. W. Coltraine furnishing entertainment. Miss Christine Lambert played piano solos and Joe Sanford and son, Tommy, played guitar numbers. Plans for the annual policeman's dance some time this spring were discussed and Chief Franzen announced that election of officers will feature the February meeting.

JUDGE TALKS TO NEWPORT CLUB

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—Character training begins at home. Judge Kenneth E. Morrison of Santa Ana reminded members of the Newport Harbor Service club at their luncheon yesterday of his talk on stimulating youth through adult example.

The chief crime, he said, is for parents to fail in their duty to their children. Nothing could be wrong with the growing generation if adult mentors practiced what they preached, he gave his listeners to understand, speaking from his years of experience in court and juvenile matters.

ENROLLMENT AT GROVE JUMPS

GARDEN GROVE.—Enrollment in Garden Grove schools was slightly increased when school opened this week following the holiday vacation. Principal L. L. Doig of the high school and Superintendent S. R. Fitz of the elementary schools said today.

No withdrawals were made at the high school, while two additional students, Russell Gale from Orange and Henry Pratt, from Trenton, N. J., enrolled this week.

Others in the cast will be Anna Campbell, Charles Benedict, Bill Vail, Marie Hare, Ed L. Hensley and Dale Braybrooks. Minor parts have not been assigned.

VISITORS HONORED.
TUSTIN.—Mr. and Mrs. William S. Borum, Gallup, N. M., were week-end guests of Mrs. May W. Borum and Miss May Rose Borum. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Borum, Los Angeles, joined them Sunday.

It wasn't really fair, Tommy thought contritely, to be taking advantage of this good-natured man. He watched him advance the spark properly and finally settle the motor down to an even hum, as he explained carefully to Tommy, all the while, just how it was done.

Finally he stood up. "Sma" wonder I thought there was trouble about the motor, yep, yep, yep! "Aye, if ye have plenty. An' thanks to ye, Jerry."

Many thanks to you, Mac."

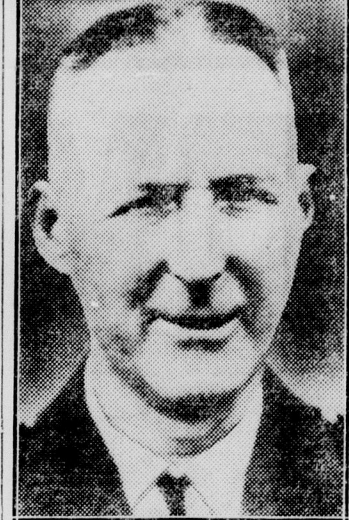

A few minutes later the police craft was but a dim dot in the distance.

"Go tell Miss Marshall that, for safety, she's better stay under cover yet a while. But open the locker door or she'll suffocate."

Jerry suggested as he swung the launch about and headed for the larger island near by.

Tommy went aft. He unlatched the locker and opened it. Linda lay in a huddled heap inside. And

Dangerous Landings

By LOIS BULL

AUTHOR OF 'CAPTIVE GODDESS'

When Linda Marshall, American girl, is "lost over the Pacific" on a boat, who is in love with her, has secret knowledge that her disappearance will be followed by a search in some way, with her uncle, Copernicus Marshall, a scientist supposed to have been lost years ago, on an expedition in the Pacific. Tommy goes out to Hong Kong, where he meets a man, Fred, who is a newspaper man. They go to an island off Hong Kong to see a mysterious accident. Tommy believes to be Linda's uncle, but they are convinced that the old man who believes there is an impostor. They discover that Linda is on the island and rescue her, but not without gun fire. When the shot attract a harbor police boat to Jerry's motorboat, Linda hides in a locker.

CHAPTER X
As the police boat hovered alongside, Tommy stood up against the glare of its powerful searchlight. For effect, he had sneered his hands with oil.

Jerry, at the wheel, called out a hearty "Hallo!" Then, as an answering call came, he called, "That you, Mac? It's Mitchell. Out fishing and my blinking engine goes sour. Me and a pal of mine, Tommy Drew."

In a few minutes a brawny, square-set Scot had jumped aboard. His voice was gruff, but he had a twinkle in his eye.

"How many times have I warned ye, Jerry, nae to take this wee thing out sea fair? . . . Aye, ye'll nae be a proper sailor. Glad to know a friend o' Jerry's, sir," turning to Tommy. "I see ye playin' on engines. Let a mon who knows have a look!"

It wasn't really fair, Tommy thought contritely, to be taking advantage of this good-natured man. He watched him advance the spark properly and finally settle the motor down to an even hum, as he explained carefully to Tommy, all the while, just how it was done.

Finally he stood up. "Sma" wonder I thought there was trouble about the motor, yep, yep, yep! This strange things we've been hearin' o' late o'er yonder near Marshall's island, and we have to keep a sharp eye out! . . . Aye, but 'tis a fine mess o' fish ye have here!" "Would you care for one for your supper?" Jerry offered, picking out the largest one and holding it by the tail.

"Aye, if ye have plenty. An' thanks to ye, Jerry."

Many thanks to you, Mac."

A few minutes later the police craft was but a dim dot in the distance.

"Go tell Miss Marshall that, for safety, she's better stay under cover yet a while. But open the locker door or she'll suffocate."

Jerry suggested as he swung the launch about and headed for the larger island near by.

Tommy went aft. He unlatched the locker and opened it. Linda lay in a huddled heap inside. And climbed out. Jerry led the way along the curving shore, past thatched bathing cabins and a rambling bamboo clubhouse which was dark except for a thin light toward the rear.

"Nothing going on here to-night," said Jerry. "Nobody here but Yu Yang and his wife, the caretakers. My cottage is beyond. If you want, Yu Yang will have a corking meal ready for us in an hour. But I've plenty of tinned stuff at the cottage . . ."

"I'm very handy with a can-opener," Linda put in, "and before an undertaker, I ought, if possible, to be my way. Your plane here, Tommy?"

"At the field. It has been undergoing repairs, but is in shape now."

"How soon can we be off?"

"By daylight."

"Not sooner?"

"All depends on how far you want to go."

"A couple of thousand miles straight across?"

"That I should say, would land you almost in the middle of the Pacific," Jerry put in. "Not that it's really any of my business. But I'm sort of in on all this, and if there's anything I can do . . ."

"As if you hadn't saved my life today, and Tommy? Linda said quickly, "There's another thing must be done. I have to have clothes of a sort in which to go ashore at Victoria. I've all my papers in a waterproofed harness around my waist. I've sense enough not even to go swimming without those! Especially when I wasn't planning to return!"

"Smart girl!" Jerry said. "And here we are!"

They had reached a small cabin of whitewashed framework, with its conventional veranda room.

"Not much like the luxury of your uncle's handsome villa. He's an interesting man, isn't he? Jerry said, leadingly.

"But that man wasn't my uncle! Surely you knew that!" Linda looked at both men in consternation. "That man is up to serious mischief, and my uncle must be warned before it is too late. He's at Crab Island. I came from there on a submarine."

"A what?" both men exclaimed. "A submarine. I was supposed to come here secretly and get a message to Angus Kirkbrae. But since arriving, that man has kept me a prisoner. If he finds out I have escaped"—her voice lowered—"my life isn't worth anything. I tell you, I think Patrick Plane would commit murder to keep me from delivering that message!"

SCHOOL BOARD TO CONSIDER NEW J. C. PLANT IF PUBLIC WANTS IT

REPORT MADE ON SERVICE TO FARMS

19th Year of Work in County Completed by Organization

The 19th annual report of the Agricultural Extension Service in Orange county has just been submitted to its three supporting agencies—the University of California, Berkeley; the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.; and the county board of supervisors.

The report reveals a wide scope of activities during the past year in cooperation with many farmers, committees, farm groups, and marketing organizations throughout the county. Its activities this year, as in the past, have continued to touch the major cultural, economic and social phases of rural business and living in this county.

296 Project Leaders

Its program of work during the year involved the cooperation of 296 project leaders. It has contacted a large majority of the 6070 farm owners and operators in the county through its regular channels of field and home demonstrations, field tours, institutes, commodity groups, farm and office calls and radio programs.

The statistical section of the 1936 report evidences a heavy demand on the local extension office, comprising the home demonstration agent and the farm advisor staff. A total of 2281 farm calls were made; 5843 calls were made at the office for agricultural and home economics information; 4290 telephone calls answered; 4471 letters written; 5293 agricultural bulletins issued; 58 agricultural radio programs given; and 19 4-H agricultural and home economics clubs conducted.

Field Demonstrations

One hundred fifty-nine field and home economics demonstrations were conducted with 7098 people attending; 22 agricultural tours with 1156 attendance; 14 initial field days were held with 2510 attendance; participated in 64 farm center meetings and 264 other meetings pertaining to the agricultural program of Orange county.

Among the rural activities emphasized during 1936 by the Agricultural Extension Service, in cooperation with the county board of supervisors and other bureau departments are included 4-H agricultural and home economics clubs, home demonstration program, rural recreation and leadership, better farm records and accounting, windbreak protection, improved citrus propagation, soil erosion control, agriculture, more efficient irrigation practices, fertilizer demonstration plots, commodity association, and commodity promotion and marketing programs.

Source of Citrus Brown Rot Found

Brown rot of citrus is due to soil-borne fungi, the mottle spores of which are splashed during rains to low-hanging fruit and foliage. While the initiation of the decay in the field is confined to the rainy season, healthy fruits in storage may become infected by contact with decaying fruit.

Recent investigations by Dr. H. S. Fawcett of the Citrus Experiment Station have shown that citrus brown rot in California starts with the penetration of the micro-organism from spores of the Phytophthora fungus. This fungus is also responsible for the serious bark canker known as gummosis, according to Farm Advisor Harold E. Wahlberg.

Occasionally, after rains accompanied by or followed by winds, the spores may be wafted to higher levels. Infected fruits have been found as high as 20 to 30 feet in old seedling orange trees. These fruits, if picked in moist weather, carry the fungus to the washing tank where, if not controlled, the parasite develops, multiplies, and infects a large percentage of the fruit.

Tales of Buried Treasure Lead Many to Dig Without Result in Trabuco Canyon

(Editor's Note: Federal Writers' project workers, under Ted N. Burrell, Orange county editor, are compiling an Orange county guide. From some of the older histories and documents many old, interesting and previously unpublished facts are unearthed. Here is another in a series of such stories to be printed from time to time exclusively in The Santa Ana Journal.)

By TED N. BURRELL

Vivid stories of buried treasure in Orange county have been handed down from generation to generation. These often retold tales have been the incentive for many a fruitless hunt for the elusive hidden gold. Of the many places in Orange county where gold might have been buried at some time in the dim past, Trabuco canyon holds the record of being the site of more explorations than any other location.

According to old records, the visit of the notorious pirate Bouchard to San Juan Capistrano in 1818 is the foundation for most of the legends regarding hidden gold. Bouchard and his crew dropped anchor in the little bay near the mission village and came ashore upon ransacking the mission for gold. Whether or not there was any great treasure ever stored within the mission walls is problematical.

Valuables Removed

However, word had been relayed down the coast by horseback from Monterey, scene of one of the pirate's stops, and by the time the buccaner arrived at Capistrano everything of value had been removed from the village and taken into the hills for safety.

This fact, however, lends credence to some of the tales of hidden treasure. Tradition, divorced from fact, has it that chests of gold and silver were taken from the mission and buried in Trabuco canyon. Tradition further states that after Bouchard sailed away, none the richer for his efforts, the chests of treasure were not brought back to the mission, but were left buried in the canyon in case of further raids. Fact, divorced from glamorous legend, states the cold, bare assertion that the San Juan Capistrano mission was not a place of any great riches, and that it is doubtful that any great amount of gold was ever stored there, aside from a few altar ornaments and silver pieces used by the padres in services.

Christmas Came to Eskimo Yesterday -- Weeks Late

BETHEL, Alaska (AP)—Christmas Eve finally came to Eskimos in southwestern Alaska last night.

Pussy willow Christmas trees suddenly burst into bloom in native villages where the birth of Christ was celebrated today in a conglomerate Pagan-Christian fashion.

Since the early eighteenth century when the Russians established trading posts, the Eskimos in the vicinity of Russian Mission, 150 miles north of Bethel, have celebrated the Russian Catholic Christmas on Jan. 7.

To the Russian ceremony, natives have added the Christmas tree custom and a ceremony of their own.

Willow shrubs, the branches of which were almost frozen when dug last fall, were nourished in water so they would bloom on Christmas Eve—pussy willow.

TALK ON PEACE AT J. C. FORUM BEAUTIFYING OF FARMS URGED

Members of the junior forum class at Santa Ana Junior college were addressed Wednesday by Art Cassidy, secretary of the youth division of the Emergency Peace campaign, on the subject of peace.

Cassidy outlined a four-point program for youth to help keep the United States out of war. His program consisted of a neutrality policy designed to provide mandatory embargoes on economic and financial assistance to belligerent nations in time of war in any area.

The second recommendation was to reduce armaments only to the extent of providing for defense. Taxing profits and nationalization of munitions were his other points.

Throughout his address, Cassidy reiterated the necessity of the expression of opinions on war on the part of each individual citizen. He especially advocated the assistance and expression of youth on the question.

Cassidy cited the devastation brought about by war, grouping losses in time of war into six divisions. These were life, material things, culture, morals, religion, and political freedom.

FIRE LOSS IN CITY IS LOW FOR 1936

Total Is $4228, Tenth of Amount Here for the Previous Year

If your home, including its contents, is worth $5000, and you have a fire, your loss probably will be only around $300.

Which is a pretty good record, as fire losses go, and which was Santa Ana's average for 1936, according to figures reported today by Fire Marshal E. C. Gates.

Record Is Better

Santa Ana's record is getting better, too. In 1935, for instance, the average owner of a burning building lost 5 per cent of its value—or almost 10 times as much as the 1936 average, which was but six-tenths of 1 per cent.

Firemen answered 192 calls during the year, or an average of a little over one every two days.

Total Loss $4228

Property involved in fires amounted to $636,325, with a loss of only $4228.93, Gates reported. Of this loss $2466.72 was to buildings valued at $302,850, and $1762.21 to contents valued at $333,475.

Besides the 192 alarms, firemen answered 13 rescue calls during the year, of which four were successful. They entered the courts, too, to make four arrests for violation of the city trash-burning ordinance.

U. S. STILL PAYS 1812 PENSION

WASHINGTON (AP)—More than 121 years have elapsed since the war of 1812 ended, but Uncle Sam still is paying two pensions because of services rendered in that war.

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, veterans administrator, said in his annual report today that war of 1812 pensions of $50 and $28, respectively, were going to Mrs. Carolina King of Cheektowaga, N. Y., and Mrs. Esther Ann Hill Morgan of Independence, Ore.

KIWANIS CLUB TAKING LEAD IN PROJECT

Officials Approve but
They Ask Expression
From More People

Santa Ana school board officials would be happy to give serious consideration to the proposition of building a new junior college for Santa Ana, if the public desires it.

This statement was made today by President George Wells of the board of education following a meeting of the Santa Ana Kiwanis club yesterday afternoon when a new junior college for the city was cited as one of the major objectives of the club for the coming year.

Action of the Kiwanis club in naming a special committee headed by Sam Hurwitz to develop information regarding public opinion and consider ways and means of bringing about construction of a new college plant gave impetus to the idea. President R. B. Newcomb of the club pointed out that there is no question as to the need for a new junior college plant.

Wells said there is no question but what the board of education approves of the idea of having a new junior college plant. He said, however, that board members would like expressions regarding the move to come from additional representative citizens of the community. If sufficient representative citizens feel that this is the right time to go ahead with the plan and appear before the board of education with a reasonable request, the school officials will go into the matter seriously, Wells said.

Wells also pointed out that now it might be possible to secure government aid in financing construction of a new junior college plant, whereas in the future this might not be the case.

AKRON HIT BY GAS STRIKE

AKRON, O. (AP)—Motors in this industrial city of 260,000 persons leveled lugubrious looks at their fuel-less automobiles today and hoped for quick settlement of a strike which closed all but a few emergency gasoline stations.

Heavy loads fell upon street cars and homey shoe leather after the walkout of gasoline truck drivers.

Hugh D. Friel, department of labor conciliator, said he was hopeful of a quick settlement.

Car Hits, Breaks Off Fire Hydrant

Police surveyed damage to a fire hydrant and to an automobile driver yesterday as the result of two traffic accidents.

Domingo Serna, route 4, Santa Ana, was cited for driving without a license yesterday when his truck crashed into a hydrant at First and Baker streets, breaking it off and starting a miniature geyser.

August Grove, Anaheim, was given first aid for minor cuts after his car struck an auto driven by Delbert Smith, 1316 West Fifth street, on West Fifth street last night.

In a beautiful candlelight service Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at Trinity Episcopal church, Orange, Miss Ruby Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Armstrong of El Modena, and William Phillip Goulden, son of Mrs. Dorothy Goulden of Alturas, Calif., were united in marriage.

The bride wore a white satin gown, made with a high neckline, long sleeves, and a train. Her long veil was held by a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Mary Moore, her maid of honor, was attired in royal blue tulle, and carried a bouquet of daffodils and pink sweet peas.

Other attendants were sisters of the bride, Miss Margery Armstrong, in a pink tulle princess model gown; Miss Ethel Armstrong, in sky blue tulle, and Miss Helen Armstrong, a junior bridesmaid, in turquoise blue tulle. All carried pink sweet peas and wore matching turbans.

Little Julia and Marion Armstrong were charming flower girls wearing peach-colored formals and carrying gold baskets filled with rose petals.

Herman Webster, Alturas, was the best man; and ushers were Joe Blake of Van Nuys, and Bob Armstrong, Vernon Barr and Gordon Westfall of Orange.

Four archways of white flowers and greenery, supporting a score of lighted tapers, were placed over the aisle down which the bride and groom moved to the strains of Lohengrin's March, played on the organ by Mrs. Merrill Bauer of Santa Ana.

The single ring service of the Episcopal church was read by the Rev. F. F. Stofor, rector of the church, and the bride was given in marriage by her father. Preceding the ceremony, Charles Armstrong, brother of the bride, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because."

A reception for 175 guests was given in the parlors of the church, during which the bride cut the first slice of a three-tiered wedding cake. A color scheme of red, green and silver was used in decorations. Miss Emily Cuff of Placencia, presided at the tea table.

The bride was spread with a lace cloth and appointed with lighted tapers and a silver service.

For her going away outfit, the bride chose a dark blue tailored suit with red accessories. After a week's honeymoon, they will be at home on the ranch owned by the bridegroom near Alturas, where he received his education.

The bride is a graduate of Orange Union High school, class of 1935, and attended a Santa Ana business college. She is a talented violinist, and for several years has been soloist of Trinity Episcopal choir. She will continue her musical activities in her new home.

Mary Stoddard Maybe 'Dodo' Is Failing Her Husband, Says 'Straight-from-the-Shoulder'

By MARY STODDARD

She's just 20, and married to a man some years her senior. She recently wrote me, asking whether or not she should get a divorce because her husband pays too much attention to other young girls when they are out. Here is a reply that will probably make "Dodo" fighting mad, and it may not be pertinent, but at least she should think it over.

Dear Miss Stoddard: Dodo says, "Can you figure it out for me?" Here's the sum total which the figures give me as a result. I do not wish to offend anyone, but I think it's about time that someone should talk "cold turkey" to Dodo. Here it comes Dodo, both barrels, so get set, you may need a brace after it's over with.

I'll bet a nickel that you have never even stopped to consider your rightful and proper place, with reference to your man. How much encouragement and real help have you been this far in married life to that man of yours? Does he give you his confidence? Does he ask for your opinions? I'll say he doesn't.

Think this one over; why doesn't he ask your opinions? From a man's point of view, I'll tell you why he doesn't. First, your name do not have been signed Gogo, instead of Dodo. Second, you are a go-buy girl, or I miss my guess. Third, you never have anything to wear. And I'll bet that the laundry does his washing and ironing and mending; that costs money. How many times lately have you had his breakfast ready for him as soon as he has finished shaving?

Oh—oh! He gets his breakfast "downed," does he? Well, well, wotta girl. I'll bet that he goes buttonless, too, if he should happen to pop a button off his shirt just prior to his leaving home to go to work. Call your shots, and answer the charges, sister, if the charges aren't true. And Dodo, remember that you were once on the receiving end of that eying business. And what's more, you thoroughly enjoyed it then, whether or not he was with another girl. And, also remember that, to her who is given authority and prestige, is also given responsibility. And you have not lived up to your responsibility, or your husband would not be trying to arouse some little show of your affection, or evidence of one kind or another to prove to himself that you are his; all his; and that you share his every mood.

The "Questers" of the First Methodist church enjoyed a tasty supper Tuesday evening when they were entertained by Mrs. F. W. Wiesseman, whose daughter Helen, with Mrs. George Townsend, leads the group, which is a girls' society for junior missionary training.

Miss Jessie Faires, president, conducted a business meeting later, which was opened with a devotional service led by Miss Betty Plice. The principal feature of the evening was a talk by Mrs. F. E. Hearn on preparation for a place in the senior society.

Those joining hands in the "friendship circle" that closed the meeting were the Mesdames Ruth Townsend, Betty Plice, Ruth Ames, Jessie and Mary Faires, Vivian Vail, Margaret Davies, Helen Wiesseman, Marjorie Randal, Betty Corey, Maxine, Pauline, and Irene Williams, Barbara and Mary Tiltson, Mrs. Hearn, and Mrs. Townsend.

From now on pronounce your signature Dodo (Dew-Dew), instead of Dodo (Dough-Dough). By golly, that last Dodo works double doesn't it? Get it? The Dodo is an extinct bird. And the dough-rah-me is mighty nice to have and to hold. But, don't be a gold-digger. I know that you would never (confessedly) be a gold-digger, and you certainly are not an extinct bird, so-o-o-o, paraphrase.

Those Courthouse Executions

WHO'LL be next at the courthouse to get the axe? This question has the county wondering as an aftermath to the sudden beheading party staged earlier in the week by those two newly-elected supervisors—Steele Finley and Harry Riley—with the help of ex-Chairman Mitchell.

It seems to us that there's little reason to expect the supervisors to stop their pell-mell course now.

It's only necessary to look behind the scenes a little to understand the reason for this belief.

The ancient philosophers of Greece taught that there is a cause for every event.

And in searching for the cause of the board's drastic new policy, we come across two powerful influences.

One is the Townsend group. Just five days before the recent board meeting, District Organizer J. H. Walsh, in an open letter to The Journal, warned the two new supervisors to live up to their campaign obligations—or else.

Mr. Walsh's letter virtually hung the sword of Damocles by a slender thread over the neck of Byron Curry, welfare department chief.

What followed was significant. Curry and two other important appointees lost their jobs pronto.

The county Democratic organization has not been so conspicuous. But several big shot Democrats are playing a large part in the courthouse shakeup—or we miss our guess.

Both the Townsend and the Democratic organizations want to break up the old Republican ring that has run county politics for so long.

They want to take the helm themselves.

And if the last election is any criterion—they've got the support of the majority of the voting public for their ambitions.

Through Supervisors Finley and Riley, the coming two years may see the crushing of the old group that dominated county political affairs—and the rise of a powerful new organization.

In this connection, it's well to remember the old political axiom that the destruction of one political organization only means the creation of another.

Yes, the old Greek philosophers were right. There's a real cause for those official executions at the courthouse.

No other animal is so low down as the man who, in a foreign civil war, kills his fellowmen for pay. He has the spirit of a wolf and the appetite of a hyena.

Will the Supreme Court Change?

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S appeal before congress for "an increasingly enlightened view" with reference to the fundamental law of the land no doubt will hit a responsive chord among his many supporters all over the nation.

Although the President was talking to congress, it is obvious that his plea was addressed primarily to the supreme court, that august body which massacred so many important New Deal measures during the first F. D. R. administration.

The overwhelming re-election of Mr. Roosevelt, however, indicates that the vast majority of the voting citizens—some 10,000,000 at least—look at the interpretation of the constitution much as he does.

They do not necessarily want a change in the basic law—but they would like to see the black-robed justices take a viewpoint more in keeping with our progressive times and complex social problems.

The constitution—as its preamble indicates—is admirably adapted to sustain a broader interpretation than has been given it in the past—especially with relation to human rights as compared to property rights.

Indeed, several members of the court have already espoused this broader view, notably Justices Brandeis, Cardozo and Stone and, at times, Chief Hughes.

Do not be surprised if some of the hardshell justices swing over to the liberal minority. Or if, in event of the death of a conservative member, a progressive successor is appointed.

In a democratic country, all branches of the government eventually fall in line with the wishes of the great majority of the people.

The United States congress and executive have already taken this step.

It's just a question of time until the supreme court does too.

A Swedish gland expert says he can give children the strength of adults. Papa better be careful now before usurping Junior's toy railroad.

Soviet Learns About God

UNDER the new Soviet constitution, which allows people to worship as they please, millions of Russian men and women are reported to be openly expressing a belief in God.

You learn this officially from the new government census, which asks every citizen, "Do you believe in God?" The new constitution follows 18 years of governmental persecution of priests and churches.

And the new census proves that the persecution was ineffective.

The rulers of Russia might have saved themselves the trouble of trying to stamp out religion by reading about Pharaoh and the Jews in the Old Testament and profiting from the lesson.

Mankind always has instinctively worshipped a god—whether it be the carved stick of our cave-dwelling ancestors 12,000 years ago, or the Christ as interpreted today.

As Voltaire said: "If God did not exist it would be necessary to invent Him."

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

I often wonder why people, especially those rooted to America, do not read more of Ed Howe. In particular his "Story of a Country Town."

I notice it has been republished in London, elegantly by some old established firm, and the British are making it a best seller.

Howe could not at first get anyone interested in the book, and at last set it up in his own print shop. In time, however, Howells and Twain read and praised it. The author is an octogenarian now, almost blind, and one of the writers to amass a snug fortune in a small town newspaper.

His "Globe Sights" column in his Atchison paper was one of the most widely quoted in America. A column of homely philosophy that earned him the sobriquet of Sage of Potato Hill. That was his residence when he broke from his wife and took to living in a separate house on the same estate.

He told me a story in Miami one year somewhat typical of his plight. A farmer quarreled with his wife, and one black winter night was sent for kindling. He did not come back for years and she lived on there. On another stormy night years later he tumbled an armload of wood in the box with: "Here's your kindling!"

I talked to a despairing fellow today whose soul seems to have died within him. He has lived to experience the futility of his most cherished ambitions. I frequently in such exigencies think of my home town and how many worthy, talented people, tied by circumstances, who have never been able to do the things of which they were capable and longed to do.

Many a fine actor, musician, dancer and author is literally buried alive in your town and mine.

Every one now and then has a quick flash of forbidding. I recall my wife having a sudden, eldritch stab of pity while wrapping a doll one Christmas for a neighbor child. The child died in a terrible catastrophe before the doll was received. Not long ago I watched workers dropping those long scaffold ropes over the edge of a building near Times Square with an unusual shudder. I idled many moments contemplating the hazards. And in the evening editions I read that one toppled to death. Kipling, walking a country road, felt an urge to cut across a field—a path never taken before. Directly he came upon a relative who had been hunting and had been desperately wounded by accidental discharge of a gun. Kipling's short cut saved a life. Such happenstances are flicked with what we like to think is the supernatural, but realists call coincidence.

My dentist, Guy Campbell, was telling me that among patients was a wealthy man, who came for a set of teeth. He had had many from here and there but none had proved satisfactory. After pouring out his complaints, the dentist set about to test his skill. He did the job, weighted with much gold and sent a bill which was naturally a bit high. The patient came in later, all smiles, tore up his bill and made out a check for an amount in amazing excess of the charge. Then he took out a fat cigar and with his teeth snapped off the end. "That," he said, "is what I have been wanting to do for 10 years."

Then—what a rambling column this is turning out to be—there is a mistaken idea business men have no talents. Such as actors and often necktie salesmen. Not long ago I was in an office of a hard-fisted executive. A hell-for-leather sort like Herb Hoover. The day's worries were over and for no reason he began some impersonations. One of a floor walker and then of himself as a child singing about Jack Frost. Something about "Who is it that paints the leaves all red?" Jack Frost, Jack Frost, etc. It was a howl.

Thingumbobs: Damon Runyon finds Jack Kiernan and Sid Mercer are the only two pipe-smoking sport writers on the big circuit. Among the last of the metropolitan chatters of the week are Jack Norworth and Fred Allen.

Most columnists, I suppose, feel must like Ding, the cartoonist, when the wife of a friend came into his office to observe: "You must get a great deal of praise from all sides." "Not a word more," he answered, "than I need." (Copyright, 1937)

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

ROME.—For years the big question mark concerning Italy has been: After Mussolini, what? Who will take his place? Can anyone take his place? He has built up the most amazing governmental structure in the world. Will it fall like a pack of cards when Il Duce departs for the Fascist hereafter?

Mussolini has made the choice of his successor doubly difficult by exiling to obscure position every man who crowded him to the limelight.

But now it looks as if one man had come along upon whom Il Duce has bestowed the dictatorial blessing. He is Count Galeazzo Ciano, minister of foreign affairs, an what is more important, husband of Edda Mussolini.

LITTLE MUSSOLINI

Ciano is a born actor, and his acting consists chiefly of imitating his papa-in-law. Italy is full of Little Mussolinis—ambitious Fascists who ape Il Duce—but Count Ciano is the best mimic of the lot. He can roll his eyes, blow out his cheeks, pucker his lips exactly like Mussolini. He even struts around with his thumbs in the top of his pants—the village blacksmith pose so frequent with Il Duce.

Not long ago Ciano tried a balcony speech at Florence, a la Mussolini. His facial expressions were perfect, but just as he was rumbling out one of Il Duce's most stentorian perorations, his voice squeaked. There were audible titters from the crowd below.

On the whole, however, Ciano does pretty well. He is aided by having his father-in-law's piercing eyes, his full face, and his heavy jaw—though his skin looks as soft as thistledown, whereas Mussolini's is like black sandpaper.

Ciano has something which Mussolini lacks—a sense of propriety in his play-acting. Il Duce struts and storms before foreign visitors as he does before cheering Fascists, and the strangers don't like it. But with foreigner Ciano is pleasant, frank, forthright, saves the theatricals for the local peasantry.

BORN DRAMATIST

When Ciano was just out of college he became dramatic critic of a Roman paper, wrote a play himself which was produced. Mussolini, then a great devotee of the theater, saw it and liked it.

Ciano had an early yen for diplomacy, first became secretary of the Italian embassy in Rio de Janeiro. After he married Mussolini's daughter, promotion came faster. He was sent to Shanghai as consul general, where he conceived and inaugurated an express ship service between Italy and the Orient. This was the first deed of young Ciano's which indicated that, outside of a lucky marriage, he had something on the ball. People back in Rome opposed the Orient steamship service, argued that large ships could not pay because of exorbitant tolls collected by the Suez canal. Ciano argued that British steamers were so poor that new Italian vessels could capture all the trade.

He finally won out, and proved to be right. The new Italian lines have given the staid old British lines a serious jolt.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Count Ciano is ardently pro-American. Diplomats, at first amazed at the young minister of foreign affairs, are inclined to consider him as a mere mouthpiece for Mussolini, now have changed their minds. They believe he is becoming more and more a real foreign minister. Count Ciano refers to his father-in-law as "Mussolini," occasionally calls him "Muss". Ciano has profound respect for Mussolini's physical energy, complains that Il Duce is so active, despite 30 years in seniority, that he wears the young man out in half a day. Mussolini is now 53 years old, but hates to have his age mentioned. He forbade Roman newspapers to print the fact that he is a grandfather. The Cianos have two children. Ciano has had a well-rounded career, having served as minister of press and propaganda, one of the most thankless posts in Rome. It has helped him, however, to get a favorable press in subsequent work.

What bit of news has interested you most recently? King Edward. If you were editor of The Journal what one change would you make in the paper? Just give us more of its present quality.

What do you like best in The Journal? Local news.

What one thing would help Santa Ana most? Added recreational facilities.

What, in your judgment, is the most important problem facing the world today? Attaining and maintaining world peace.

One Man's Opinion

By R. F. PAINE

With congress tackling neutrality legislation, hot discussion will come on the degree of discretion to be given President Roosevelt in imposing an embargo on exports to belligerents.

Of course, the big business men of the late lamented Liberty League will object to giving Roosevelt any discretion as to embargoing on war stuffs, or anything else, since Roosevelt has intimated that he will keep America out of foreign war even if every dollar of foreign trade has to be temporarily sacrificed. There is no doubt, however, as between advocates of putting mandatory features into the new neutrality legislation and those favoring giving the President unlimited latitude.

There is one point, however, upon which there should be little disagreement. There is a hole in the enacted laws through which American manufacturers can furnish war stuffs to the belligerents of civil wars, and beyond all question, this hole should be plugged up, one good reason for it being that the belligerents of civil wars finally discard all respect for God,

What Other Editors Say

AIRPLANES SHOULD CARRY DEVICE TO SIGNAL SEARCHERS (San Bernardino Sun)

It would seem that aviation experts would seek some method by which disabled airplanes could signal searching parties.

A resident of Rialto has long sought to persuade the aviation industry that he has the answer to the problem. He would compress a signal balloon in a box attached to the plane. The lid would automatically open when the plane crashed. The balloon, of bright color, would rise several hundred feet and be held by a cord.

But what if the plane burned? Under such circumstances the balloon, of course, would be destroyed, but many planes which crash do not burn, and those which do not burn are the hardest to locate.

BRIGHT MOMENTS

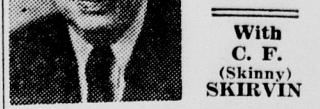

King Victor Emmanuel, king of Italy, who died in 1878, was spending the hot summer months with his family at Courmayeur, on the Italian side of the Alps, near Mont Blanc. An old lady came to the door one day with eggs, and was met by a roughly-bearded man who took the eggs and gave her money. "You seem buono, buono," said the old woman. "I wonder if I could trust you with a secret. I want to see the king." "I am the king," answered Victor. "You?" cried the old woman, shaking her head with a scornful laugh. "No, no; I am not such a fool as that. You in such thick boots, gaiters, and with hair on your face. A nice signora like the queen would never marry such an ugly man!"

When an audience starts to sing "Happy Days Are Here Again," my remembrance is not at all complacent. We used to sing it during the depression and conditions became steadily worse.

In view of conflicting reports, the return of Boy Scouts from Camp Rokiki is refreshing and welcome. With but few exceptions the boys enjoyed the experience, and accidents and incidents can happen to boys and adults also when they are home. It would have had to be an unusual circumstance to prevent assistance getting to the boys, with modern weapons with which to fight inclement weather. When the big snowplow appeared, about 40 Scouts perched themselves on top of the machine and rode down the highway. A little fellow about 11 said he had the time of his life. First thing another boy when the plow reached a roadside stand was to buy an ice cream cone. And the considerate and generous attention which a little fellow rewarded who had a broken arm carried by the kindness of a Santa Ana man and the services of a Riverside surgeon. If you think a lot of people were not concerned and considerate about those lads, you can change your mind, and with but few exceptions "a good time was had by all."

Skinny Skribbles

Around and About Town With C. F. SKIRVIN

I have been offered the opportunity to participate remotely in the inauguration of Roosevelt-Garner, but rather suspect the recognition to be more sympathetic than sincere. In order to substantiate that conviction I lifted my eyes to a late campaign sticker over my desk which reads "Landon and Knox," and then when I recall what happened last November, I rather suspect that someone either from Maine or Vermont sent me that invitation.

The melancholy days are here—at least for some of us. Banks are asking for the annual financial statements.

Friend returns from the Santa Anita races with the report that it is interesting sport while it lasts, but that it does not last but a few minutes. My one and only appearance at this popular race track was last year. At that time I encountered a stranger who hailed from Ottumwa, Iowa, and he was so sure that his "tip" was right that it cost me two dollars. Now I got to wait two years before I can go back, and I don't want to encounter anyone from Ottumwa.

I am indebted to a casual acquaintance for the suggestion that "Marco Polo's Travels" would furnish interesting reading on the road to a thrilling narrative.

The last Saturday in February will be the 27th, and that does not mean anything to you unless you found out that I had had my lunch. The annual Iowa picnic is held at Sycamore park, in Los Angeles. This item is based on the assumption that the usual custom will prevail.

And then Cal Gilbert and Charley Courts and "Brink" Brinkhoff ask me to lunch. What's the matter with those fellows? Is it just a courtesy, or do I really look that bad?

Well, if Earl Morrow does not come in to see me soon, I'll send for him. He has only turned in a partial account of his automobile trip of some several thousand miles. A lot of things could happen in that distance. And then I haven't been able to tell him what happened while he was away.

I'll swap an overcoat for a raincoat, but none of that cellophane stuff. It's too revealing.

Finally found out why Adolph Hasenjaeger insisted I go with him to the Kiwanis luncheon. He found out that I had had my lunch. But there are other places to go besides service club luncheons. Will someone tell him?

If world-wide conditions are as bad as they appear, there won't be any peace, and, judging from the strikes and quarrels going on, there isn't any good-will. That's an extreme view, but there does seem to be a dearth of friendliness.

Another beneficial rain, but I am not going to say anything about it. Too many fellows ahead of me.

Most of the Christmas trees have disappeared, but they were a joy and delight while they lasted. And then they helped consume electricity, are that helped—stock holders. But what's money for if not to enjoy? An English writer once said that money was only good for what it keeps us from.

That French actress who is visiting in the United States and refusing to accept reporters will in all probability get plenty of publicity. It may be in reverse, but it's pretty difficult to suppress the imagination of a metropolitan newspaper man.

When an audience starts to sing "Happy Days Are Here Again," my remembrance is not at all complacent. We used to sing it during the depression and conditions became steadily worse.

In view of conflicting reports, the return of Boy Scouts from Camp Rokiki is refreshing and welcome. With but few exceptions the boys enjoyed the experience, and accidents and incidents can happen to boys and adults also when they are home. It would have had to be an unusual circumstance to prevent assistance getting to the boys, with modern weapons with which to fight inclement weather. When the big snowplow appeared, about 40 Scouts perched themselves on top of the machine and rode down the highway. A little fellow about 11 said he had the time of his life. First thing another boy when the plow reached a roadside stand was to buy an ice cream cone. And the considerate and generous attention which a little fellow rewarded who had a broken arm carried by the kindness of a Santa Ana man and the services of a Riverside surgeon. If you think a lot of people were not concerned and considerate about those lads, you can change your mind, and with but few exceptions "a good time was had by all."
